La Follette's "Millions"
To Rule Our Waves
Wheat In Politics
Criminals Sleep Well

By Arthur Brisbane

"LA FOLLETTE'S race will cost $3,000,000," says the New York Times. Another New York editor says La Follette will spend ten millions. Newspapers worry a great deal about the millions that Senator La Follette is going to spend. They print nothing about expenditures by the other two candidates. Is it wicked for an independent to use money and all right for a regular?

In the way of politics it is announced that Mr. Davis will make a very savage campaign, calling upon Republicans to account for their misdeeds.

President Coolidge's Attorney General Stone, who seems to be a fighting person, brings suit against the trust that overcharges farmers for binding twine.

That following indictment of the biggest gasoline companies and the dizzy heights to which wheat and other grains have been climbing constitute a pretty good "political speech" by Coolidge, even if he should not say anything.

This is the political stage of "rosy reports." They put in on La Follette, Davis and Coolidge. Coolidge is told that Ohio, Iowa and Kansas are already his.

Davis is told that with the South and New York, Massachusetts, etc., he is ELECTED NOW.

La Follette's followers say they have "twenty-five states sure." The "rosy" days are pleasant, only some one is sure to be disappointed.

The government has ordered a group of flying machines that can travel through the air, on the water and on land. Only one step remains, the airplane and submarine flying machine, pulling in its wings and becoming a submarine. That will come, also.

The British intend that Britannia shall rule the air waves as she used to rule the ocean waves. In Britain flying machine development is not left to doubtful and more or less inefficient private efforts. The British will establish in 1925 a regular flying machine service between England and India. Flying boats now building, will carry 200 passengers, twice as fast as mail and other freight and make the trip between England and India in sixty hours, with one stop in Egypt.

Wheat continues to be the greatest politician of them all. Toplek reports that wheat replaces oil in Kansas as an exacting source of wealth.

If the boom in grain continues, as there is every reason to believe it will, carrying prices higher, political opinions and political betting will change.

One reporter, "covering" Chicago's murder trial, says of the young murderers, "They sleep as soundly as honest men in their jail cells last night."

There is nothing in the theory that honest men sleep more soundly than others. They don't. Honest men have worries, responsibilities, self-reproaches that do not afflict the criminal who accepts no responsibility whatever. Insomnia is not a criminal's disease.

The scientific world notes the discovery in France of a new anesthetic called "somnifaire." With no bad after-effects, this anaesthetic makes possible the longest operations. It is injected into the blood, causes the patient to remain half-conscious for thirty hours, which is excellent for major operations.

It is hard to believe as you read of scientific methods for avoiding pain that when anesthetics were first used they were severely denounced as works of the devil. Earnest preachers declared that God WANTED us to suffer and that was a sin to thwart His divine will.

Joseph Greenberg of New York will return to his home with new knowledge of the country and greater respect for the size of Texas. He left Brooklyn in a little automobile to bring his son back from "somewhere in Texas" and told his wife he would be gone "about three days." He will be surprised to find it will take him about a year to cross Texas as it crosses all the rest of the American continent. When you're entered Texas on one side and come out on the other you have covered almost half of the distance from ocean to ocean.

Life is expensive here for the nation. A preliminary budget indicates that it will cost $400,000,000 to run New York City in the coming year and that in spite of Mayor Hylan's fight for economy.

Before the war the United States all told owed about $1,000,000,000. In Tom Reed's day the people were horrified at the thought of the nation's spending $500,000,000 in two years. New York City alone will soon spend $500,000,000 a year and more later.

La Follette to Speak In Madison On Campaign Tour

First Address In N. Y. City: May Speak From Special Train

BULLETIN

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON — The committee which will have final authority in conducting the independent La Follette campaign for presidency purged its organization here today and tacked its first major problem. Robert M. La Follette Jr. was chosen vice chairman of the committee and Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Colorado, secretary. Rep. Nelson, Wis., chairman, is expected here tomorrow. A canvass of the requirements of the various states as to ballot designations disclosed that the La Follette ticket in 20 states must be designated by some other name other than "Independent" in these states, and all others where the election laws require adoption of a political designation the voters pledged to Sen. La Follette will be placed on the ballot under the uniform designation of "Progressives."

In states where the names of candidates for president and vice president do not appear on the ballot, the committee decided to use the designation "La Follette-Wheeler," or where two words cannot be used the word "La Follette."

Where an emblem is required, it was decided the liberty bell will be used.

Washington Bureau
The Capital Times.
WASHINGTON D. C.—Sen. Robert M. La Follette, will speak at Milwaukee, Madison and three or four other Wisconsin cities in September or early in October at what his managers declare will be a monster mass meeting.

No definite dates have been determined upon by the senator but it is known that he is contemplating making several speeches in his own state during the heat of the campaign.

Contrary to reports which have been widely published, Sen. La Follette is planning no general speaking tour of the country. He will remain in Washington almost the entire month of August. Beginning in September he will probably deliver speeches by radio at the rate of one or two a week and by the middle of September will probably take to the platform for his first public address. Madison Square Garden, the auditorium in New York which housed the Democratic convention, will probably be the scene of his opening speech.

The senator will not make more than a dozen scheduled addresses. St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, or St. Paul, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, Seattle and San Francisco are the large centers which are under consideration.

While the La Follette managers are confident of sweeping Wisconsin, the senator and his friends feel he should make several speeches in his home state during his tour through the West. His supporters in Wisconsin argue that one or two speeches such as the senator delivered during his campaign of 1922 will give the Progressives in Wisconsin a fighting mood.

May Speak From Train
In addition to filing regular engagements, it is probable La Follette will, in the closing weeks of the campaign, do considerable speaking from the rear end of a special train. Starting his campaign in the East, it is likely he will swing across the country in leisurely fashion, stopping at smaller cities to give local communities an opportunity to see him.

His schedule will be announced in advance and local Progressives will be expected to arrange for the handling of crowds at stopping points.

In this way, La Follette will probably make a number of short speeches in states like Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and other western states, through which his train will pass. In Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, en route West he may speak.

Commons Passes Third Housing Bill Reading
LONDON — The house of commons today passed the third reading of the government's housing bill after the opposition's motion of rejection had been defeated by 226 to 131. The bill as originally drafted had been a god deal altered during the committee stages but its frame work remained intact.

Asks Change In Gideons' Membership List; Claim Catholics Destroy Bibles

SHUNNED!

THE political machine is a delicate, fragile thing. When Senator La Follette attacked it with a verbal monkey wrench the works came toppling about his ears.

"I was alone. When I entered the cloak-room of the Senate chamber men turned their backs on me and conversation ceased. Members left their seats when I began to speak. My amendments to bills were treated with derision."

Senator La Follette relates the stirring story of his political career in his autobiography.

MY OWN STORY

Rutland Man Is Electrocuted In Storm

Mons Lason, 75, town of Rutland blacksmith, was found dead Friday morning next to the road near his home. A tree had blown down and carried wires with it. He had been in contact with the wires, probably in trying to remove them. Dr. Harry Keenan of Stoughton was called.

The body was discovered by a son who suffered a severe electric shock in trying to remove the body of his father. Smoke was pouring from the clothes of the father when found. The accident occurred near the Stone school house.

Several children survive, three sons living in Stoughton. Mr. Larson's wife died several years ago.

Tableau Tells Story of Organization of National Society

A change in membership designations was recommended by Pres. Samuel R. Boggs in his report before the Gideon convention Friday morning. He recommended that individuals alone be listed as associates and that corporations, and other organizations be listed as contributing members.

Commenting on Bible placing, Mr. Boggs stated that he believed in the "most active kind of work along this line during the next year."

"We have had more controversy this past year with the Roman Catholics and more correspondence with their official organs about the destruction of our Bibles than ever before," Mr. Boggs contended. "We have evidence where, on a number of occasions, our Bibles have been destroyed. We have been in correspondence with a Catholic publication known as 'Our Sunday Visitor' which has given publicity to both sides of the controversy."

"We need not be surprised if travelers of that faith would take out of hotels and away with them because they do not agree with this ministry."

The Gideons received 427 new members during the past year, according to the report of the secretary, A. B. T. More, Chicago. The organization has 2,647 associate and 173 sustaining members. During the year, 40,205 Bibles were placed against 7,741 the previous year. There are 132 local Gideon camps.

The organization of the Gideons in 1899 was reenacted by the three founders Thursday night in the First Congregational church at the silver anniversary meeting of the association. S. E. Hill, Madison, John H. Knighs, Wild Rose, Wis., and W. J. Nicholson, Denver, Colo., the founders, showed the 200 Gideons and their friends assembled in the church where the society was founded.

The first scene represented the meeting in room No. 19 of the Central hotel, Boswell, of Mr. Hill and Mr. Nicholson who became acquainted when they were assigned to the same room.

Both men regretted the absence of a Bible, and discussed the possibilities of organizing the Christian traveling salesmen.

"There ought to be some way whereby Christian men might recognize each other," Mr. Hill said.

A short time later the two men met on Main st. in Beaver, Dam. That scene also was reenacted. Both men admitted they had been thinking over the proposition of organizing a society for Christian traveling men and agreed to send letters to friends announcing a meeting to be held July 1, 1899, in the Janesville Y. M. C. A. On the day of the meeting, Mr. Hill, Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Knighs were present.

Court to Get Confessions of Slayers

Crowe Says Statements to Dovetail With All Evidence

Lead Up to Big Battle

Insanity Plea Will Be Center of Attorney's Fight

BULLETIN

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO—Nathan Leopold had planned to take his own life in the event of his being caught in the police dragnet which was spread for the murderers of young Robert Franks, Detective Sergeant William Crowe, testified the defendant told him on May 31, a few hours after his confession to the crime.

Leopold told Crowe he had carried a package of "harmless" looking headache powders, one of which was "plugged" with strychnine.

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO—The weaving of flimsy threads of circumstantial evidence into the finely meshed web which holds Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, the guilty of the kidnaping and slaying of Robert Franks was recounted today by witnesses who helped bring the wealthy young college students to "the mercy of the court."

Police officers, newspaper reporters and a friend of one of the boys were called by the state in the hearing before Judge John R. Cavert to tell of the first hint of suspicion directed against the pair and of the development of the chain of evidence which led to the confession and finally to the guilty pleas.

Howard Mayer, a Chicago newspaper reporter and student at the University of Chicago with the two defendants, told of Loeb's effort, two days after the murder of young Franks, to give him a "scoop" by suggesting the probable course of the kidnaping in collecting the ransom money from Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy.

"Gave Reporter 'Hot Tip'"
"For God's sake, don't use my name in the story," Loeb exclaimed to another reporter to whom he had given a "hot tip."

Loeb's cue to him on May 29, Mayer testified, suggested that he go to the drug store to which the ransom letter written to the elder Franks directed the parent to call for a "Mr. Johnson" who would give him instructions for the depositing of the ransom money.

"Whoever committed that crime should be strung up," Loeb told Alvin Goldstein, reporter for the Chicago Daily News, on the day young Franks' body was found, the latter testified.

Two friends of Leopold earlier described "birding expeditions" in the vicinity of the cult with Leopold and other students of ornithology, which was Leopold's hobby.

An officer told of the defendants leading a searching party to Hessville, Indiana, where shoes, belt, buckle and class pin were found. These articles, all previously identified by the parents of Robert, were found within a radius of 20 feet.

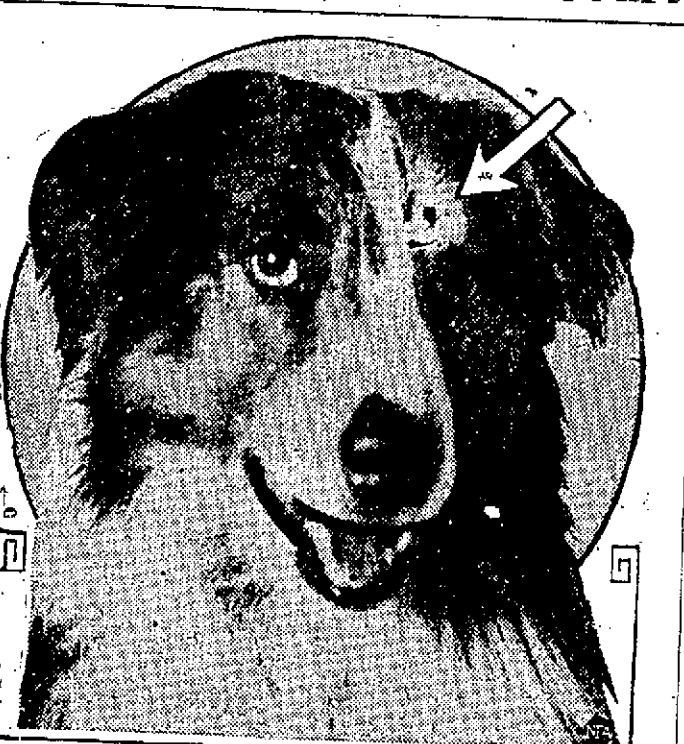

Fourteen state witnesses were examined at the morning session bringing the total of 61 called in two days and a half of court procedure.

The climax of the state's case is expected to come with the reading of those confessions. They are expected to dovetail with all the oral, written and mute material testimony that is being brought out in the big hearings.

The daily legal battle of the proceedings is expected to develop when the defense starts. The "degree of mental responsibility of the defendant" will be the field of this clash with the defense striving to show it by the testimony of alienists and the state combating the introduction of such testimony.

The state claims that the pleas of insanity, which are usually used by courts in measuring crime, the outcome will be watched as a precedent in this state.

Nicky, Shot Through Head, Recovers; Goes to Court

Arrow Shows Where Nicky Was Shot

NEW YORK—Nicky, $5,000 collie living on Riverside Drive, just won't be treated like a dog.

He has been brought up too well for that. And he hasn't lived in the same house with Johnny Dundee and Jack Dempsey for nothing, either. An insult to him, like one to the champs, must be avenged—and quickly, too.

Nicky was insulted the other morning. The superintendent of the house next door didn't like his barking. So he shot him right through the head.

With a look of scorn and a bark of defiance, the dog ran down to his own apartment, hopped up on his master's bed, and called the nurse. She dressed the wound, sent for a specialist, supervised an X-ray, and watched the extraction of the bullet. Then after a hasty consultation with the dog, she started his revenge.

A summons was sworn out, and the offending janitor was arrested. He was put under $500 bail and now faces further court action.

For Nicky is bent on making an example of him, even if he has to take the stand himself and press the charge.

Mrs. Schnetz, Lorenz Resign G. O. P. Posts

Milwaukee Man's Action Held Due to La Follette Friendship

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO—Resignations of Ira S. Lorenz, Milwaukee, Republican national committeeman from Wisconsin and Mrs. Luther N. (Julia Anderson) Schnetz, Racine, Republican national committeewoman, from that state, were offered by them today.

The letters of resignation received successively this morning, contained no reason for the action, according to William Butler, chairman of the committee.

It was stated at national committee headquarters that Mr. Lorenz's resignation was entirely voluntary and not the result of any pressure from officers of the committee, who had been about to arrange conferences with him.

John M. Nelson, National manager for Robert M. La Follette, today said:

"I knew Mr. Lorenz's purpose. He is a La Follette man and resigned from the Republican national committee in order not to embarrass any one nor be embarrassed. Mrs. Schnetz is also a supporter of Sen. La Follette. Though I am not informed of her reason for resigning, I presume it is the same as that of Mr. Lorenz."

(By the Associated Press)
MILWAUKEE — When asked here today his reason for resigning his post, Ira S. Lorenz declined to comment at this time. He said he would have a statement on July 28, after his return from Madison where he expected to go to confer with party leaders.

Liquor Trail Leads to Washington

Federal Officials, Rail and Police Heads Involved

Florida Grand Jury Acts Capias Issued for Immediate Arrest of Men Involved

(By the Associated Press)
TAMPA, Fla.—A federal grand jury in session here today returned an indictment involving thirty-six persons from Jacksonville to Washington in connection with an alleged liquor ring which was alleged to include railroad officials, police officers and government officials at the capital.

A capias for the arrest of each of the 36 named in the indictment has been issued and arrests are to follow immediately.

According to U. S. District Attorney Gohber, the indictment breaks up a well organized gang that had carried on for many months and had been responsible for a large portion of Washington's liquor supply.

The liquor, it is said, was landed on the east coast of Florida and taken to Jacksonville, whence it was shipped into Washington in small case lots. It is alleged in the indictment that the transportation of the liquor was protected by railroad, police and government officials until arrival in the capital.

Find Missing Woman At Peshtigo

(By the Associated Press)
PESHTIGO, Wis.—Mrs. Albert Baumann, 29, who disappeared from her home late Wednesday, was found at noon today in a clump of bushes a quarter of a mile from her home near here. She was in a critical condition from exposure and was in a dazed state when taken to her home. After being given first aid, the woman was removed to a Marinette hospital.

PESHTIGO, Wis.—A twenty-four hour search of the dense woods and a swamp near here for the mother of a baby 8 years old, who wandered away from her home five miles west of here last night, today had failed to reveal any trace of her.

Twenty-five farmers assisting sheriff's deputies scoured the forests all night and bloodhounds are to be set on the woman's trail, it was decided.

Mrs. Albert Baumann, the missing woman, is obsessed by the belief that she is going insane, it is said.

Two Couples Injured In Crash at Superior

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Two couples were seriously injured, one girl probably fatally, when a freight train crashed into their automobile at South Superior Thursday night. The victims, all of Aitkin, Minn., who were removed to a hospital, are: Minnie Huber, 25, back wrenched, deep gash back of head, two ribs broken, left hand bruised, John Spalding, left hand crushed, head badly out.

The department here has turned its attention to Prairie du Chien, Pulda's former home, and may either be satisfied that the accident occurred there or that the search for a portion of the accessories taken, they are satisfied that this is a small part of the accessories stolen. As evidence of this, Pulda confessed to police that he "stripped" several cars of their spare tires and accessories near the Cardinal hotel a short time ago, but refused to tell what he had done with them.

It was announced at the police station Friday that most of the articles recovered so far by officers working on the case have already been identified and returned to their owners. Many of those who already at the station were university students.

Pulda and Busby are being held in jail here pending further investigation.

Slayer Refuses to Take Stand Against Woman Charged With Paying Him to Kill Husband

(By the Associated Press)
HURLEY, Wis.—Andrew Gudleski, self-confessed slayer of Andrew Sigler, Hurley hotel keeper whose bullet-riddled body was found on the Hurley-Mercer road May 2, last, sprang a surprise in court here this noon when he refused to take the stand and testify against Mrs. Emma Sigler, wife of the murdered man, who is charged with complicity in the crime. Gudleski, according to authorities, confessed to the killing June 23, and at that time told Mrs. Sigler he paid him $400. for committing the crime.

Brought here last night from Waupun where he is serving a life sentence for the crime, Gudleski, when asked to repeat his charge against the woman refused to do so. He gave no reason for his silence.

Detective Joseph Hayes, credited with "worming" the confession of the crime from Gudleski while the two were cellmates here in June, took the stand and repeated the testimony he gave at the time Gudleski was sentenced. He told the court how he acted as messenger between Gudleski and Mrs. Sigler, and produced letters he claims to have carried from Gudleski to Mrs. Sigler together with the woman's replies.

Mrs. Sigler was scheduled to take the stand this afternoon.

Sends Letter to Dairy and Food Commissioner On Recent Statement

A. R. Hirst, candidate for governor, has sent the following letter to J. Q. Emery, state dairy and food commissioner:

"There has been called to my attention a recent letter from you in one of the Madison papers regarding a statement attributed to me by The Capital Times.

"The statement was as follows: 'The present administration, however, has in every department reverted to the spoil system.'"

"I have made no such statement in any public address. I am not given to making sweeping statements which I cannot prove.

"However, I have every confidence and belief that the Dairy and Food Commissioner and his department is running a clean cut business department. Such is my information and with that information I could not have made the statement attributed to me. Possibly my news bureau here made such a sweeping statement but I cannot find any record of that."

Editor's Note — The original statement printed in this newspaper was received from the publicity department of the Hirst campaign and if Mr. Hirst was misquoted the responsibility is with his own news bureau.

See Defeat of Highland Avenue Site For West Side High School

Protest Is Registered At Hearing

Public Meet Last Night Develops Battle On Board Plan

The proposal to purchase the site at Highland ave. and Regent st. for a future West Side high school will be voted down by the common council Friday night, it was indicated a few hours before the councilmen were to gather to take action in this controversy. The school board is in favor of the site. A large following of Madison citizens agree with the board. A number of local organizations have also aligned themselves with this faction.

On the other hand there is strong opposition to the purchase of this property. Following the channels of regular procedure, the school board proposed the purchase of this site by the city and the council referred the question to its finance committee and this committee at the meeting tonight will recommend that the city buy the site.

Opposition Shows Hand While the opposition to the purchase has been slowly developing, a real test of its strength was gained Thursday night when approximately 10 citizens of the South and West Sides appeared before the council which sat as a committee of the whole and protested the purchase.

Residents of the South Side predominated. Those opposed to the proposition insisted that the city turn a deaf ear to the school board request, and buy the site at Oakland Heights, or some other site more centrally located than the one at Highland ave. and Regent st. None of them insisted that the Oakland Heights site be bought.

They charged that the board's plan of two school buildings was too costly insisting that one building could serve the west and south sides if centrally situated. Prof. E. B. Skinner, president of the board of education, explained the wisdom of the board giving an outline of the entire school construction program during the last few years. He declared that the site on Highland ave. was the only logical spot for a high school due to its small cost and elevation of the ground.

Says Survey A Mistake "During the last two years two boards of education have unanimously adopted the Highland avenue site," Prof. Skinner said. "It makes a total of 18 past and present school board members in favor of the location. In addition to this other civic organizations and clubs have also endorsed it. The Madison Real Estate board voted unanimously for it. John M. Olin voluntarily expressed himself in favor of the project."

"The city ought to build a senior high school on the Highland avenue and a junior high school somewhere near St. Mary's hospital," he said. The board has seen the need of taking care of pupils on the South Side. The Franklin school has 220 pupils for a school of this type.

Chauncey E. Blake, member of the board, declared that the Burlington survey is an "errant mistake." He declared that the rapid growth of the city makes it imperative that a school be built as soon as possible. Mr. Blake declared that another school would be built on the South Side within a very short time.

Must Buy Soon "If we do not buy sites now you will be sending your children to school in the streets within a very short time," Mr. Blake said. "The 1915 census showed that there were 7,888 prospective pupils in the city. In the school census just completed we see that the prospective school population now is placed at 11,891. This growth is astounding especially in view of the fact that eight out of every 11 children of school age attend the Madison public schools. Bartholomew's report declared that there would be more than 10,000 pupils at this time."

The Highland ave. site has no buildings on it. The cost would be about $97,000 as compared to the $222,325 placed on the Oakland Heights site by the Madison Real Estate board. The latter site would require the removal of 20 houses," he said.

Quinn Leads Opposition Thomas W. Quinn, leader of the opposition, declared that the Highland ave. site would cost more than the figure set in the board's plan. He declared that they would be building the monumental site on the west corner of the intersection of the board, Ald. Quinn declared that the present offer of the site would not sell for less than $100,000.

"There is a better site for a high school than this site near the cemetery," Ald. Quinn said. "The real question is on for two schools or one. The board's plan was to have two schools plan was to have one. I do not see how any plan could be expected to go through the council."

Michael Diederich declared that prospective of the cost the Highland ave. site was not a high school on the ground. He declared that the site was not a high school on the ground. He declared that the site was not a high school on the ground.

Says Two Schools Needed To build one school would mean a building of such size that there would not be playground space for the children, Miss Regina Groves, member of the board of education declared. Miss Groves urged that two schools is the most logical plan.

At Boy Slayers' Hearing

Nathan P. Leopold, Sr., Chicago millionaire, heard his son "Babe" plead guilty to the murder of Robert Frank. Here the father is shown in Chief Justice Caverly's court with his elder son, Foreman. The strain has been under since the arrest of his younger son is shown in the deep lines in his face.

This is Chief Justice John R. Caverly of Cook County Criminal Court, Chicago, who accepted Nathan P. Leopold, Jr. and Richard J. Leopold's pleas of guilty to the kidnapping and murder of Robert Frank. The picture was taken when the judge was on the bench.

County Dems Plan to Break Progressives

Pick Candidate Slate at Conference Here Thursday

Dane county Democrats, in a conference Thursday night, decided to make special efforts this year to wrest the Madison assembly district from the Republicans. John H. Bowman of the town of Madison was endorsed as the Democratic candidate.

Prohibition Commissioner Herman J. Sachtjen has been elected to the Dane county board of supervisors. The plan is to elect Mr. Sachtjen to the speaker's chair, and the Democratic strategy is to smash this part of the program by beating Mr. Sachtjen.

John Moran expressed the view that in close districts Democratic chances would be increased by the widening split in Republican ranks over the La Follette presidential candidacy. He said Coolidge maneuvers are preparing to place every legislative candidate on record on the presidency, and that where the candidates refuse to support Mr. Coolidge many Republicans will vote for Democratic candidates.

In the third assembly district, which in former years frequently elected Democrats, Dr. C. A. Sholtz was endorsed. Other endorsements are: Sheriff William P. Whelan, Fitchburg; county clerk Martin A. Hehn, Mt. Vernon; treasurer, John Blaszka, Jr., Sun Prairie; registrar of deeds, Fred Skalitzky, Madison; district attorney, Alvin Lovering, Stoughton; clerk of court, Johanna Ryan, Bristol.

Truck With 6,600 Pound Load Crushes Youth

KENOSHA, Wis.—Life was crushed out of Harold Crow, 16 years old, when he slipped from the running board of a truck and fell under its wheels Thursday. The truck loaded with 6,600 pounds of cement, passed over his chest. His father, a contractor, brought the boy and rushed him to the hospital where he died.

The driver, Paul L. Ennis, did not know he could not have prevented the accident, workmen said. The building is in the vicinity. It is charged that the board contemplated conversion of the Central high school into a junior high school which would force the pupils of the eighth and fourth wards to go to the one school nearest the cemetery.

Prof. Skinner denied that this portion of the Bartholomew survey was adopted. M. E. Olbrich, attorney, declared that the Oakland site was not a height but was at one time a part of the Monona lake bed and still contains ear trails in the unfilled interior regions.

Jackson Apposes Plans L. E. Gettle, of the railroad commission, urged that a central site for the transportation problem was a large factor in location of schools. Mayor I. Milo Kerkorian declared that while the Highland ave. site is ideal it was the best site to be secured.

Ralph Jackman, attorney, spoke against the board's project urging that the present school population be favored in preference to the future demand. "I do not believe that we should swallow a theoretical survey, made by an expert from St. Louis," Mr. Jackman said. "It is wrong to build near a coal yard as at Oakland Heights site but it is equally wrong to build near a cemetery."

Ald. Quinn declared that the Oakland Heights land is not marshy and that the charge made that $100,000 would be expended in preparing the land for the foundation.

La Follette's Campaign Body Meets

New Committee Opens Session In Washington Today

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON—The national executive committee of the La Follette presidential campaign was called together for its first meeting here today. Ten men and women, to whom the Wisconsin senator yesterday delegated practically complete authority to marshal the organization of his supporters, and finance a brisk campaign, were summoned for the meeting.

Rep. John M. Nelson, of Wisconsin, national campaign manager and chairman of the committee, was asked to come from Chicago to preside at the session.

The committee was authorized to introduce a measure of discipline into the La Follette campaign, although a strict political organization was still avoided. Among its principal problems, were questions affecting the selection of presidential electors and endorsement of candidates seeking to run with the general La Follette endorsement in several states.

Will Raise Campaign Fund Plans for financing the campaign also are before the committee. Though stories of a large campaign fund, $3,000,000, or $5,000,000, were denied by leaders in the movement, it was declared money was needed and being sought.

Labor organizations identified with the movement have been the most active thus far in raising funds, and the new committee is expected to name a treasurer and stabilize the work. Alexander Kahn, publisher of a Jewish newspaper in New York City, has taken over the task of appealing to the needle trades unions while the national officials of the railroad unions concerned have circulated their locals for money.

Makeup of Committee The makeup of the committee personnel was made from Senator La Follette's office, accompanied by the following biographical data respecting its members:

John M. Nelson, chairman; elected member of congress from Wisconsin in 1906, and has served continuously with the exception of one term; leader of the progressives in the sixty-eighth congress.

Rudolph Spreckels, San Francisco; civic reformer and banker; president First National bank, San Francisco; organized the San Francisco graft prosecution in 1906; led the fight for prohibition for clean government; prominent in water-power league.

Morris Hillquit, New York lawyer, author, candidate for mayor of New York City, 1917; chairman, national committee of socialists party.

Lyn J. Frazier, North Dakota; former governor, now United States senator.

Paul M. Menly, economist, former director United States commission on industrial relations; joint chairman, national war labor board; director people's legislative service.

Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans, Boston, member of Massachusetts minimum wage commission, 1911-12; active in woman suffrage movement.

D. B. Robertson, Cleveland, president Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Robert M. La Follette, Jr., chairman republican state control committee of Wisconsin; secretary to Senator La Follette.

Aged Man Killed On Farm In Town of Springdale MT. HOREE, Wis.—Andres Brulley, 69 years old, was instantly killed on the farm of Mrs. Anna Doeken in the town of Springdale while driving a load of hay into the barn. The details of the accident are not known as Mr. Brulley was alone in the barn at the time.

Mrs. C. P. G. Krogh fell while hanging out clothes, and broke her arm. She broke the other arm recently when she slipped on the church steps.

A session was opened in the senate chamber at 9:45 with Mrs. W. D. G. Leslie, Fargo, N. D., president, presiding. The welcome on behalf of the Madison Auxiliary was presented by Mrs. S. E. Hill. An address also was given by Mrs. V. W. Deist, Madison.

The convention photo was scheduled to be taken at noon at the State St. entrance to the Capitol. The convention banquet will open at 6:30 Friday night in the Park hotel. Dr. William A. Gamfield, president of Carroll college, will be the speaker. His subject will be "Saving the Day for the U. S."

Paul A. Westbury, Ill., will be toastmaster. Music will be furnished by the Varsity quartet. A social hour for delegates and visitors, with national Auxiliary officers in the receiving line will be held in the hotel parlors after the banquet.

The election of officers and the selection of the 1925 convention city will be made Saturday afternoon at the final business session. The convention will adjourn after an all day program Sunday when it will include visits to churches in the morning, community singing and a mass meeting in music hall Sunday afternoon, a meeting for young people at 5:30 in the First M. E. church, and closing services at 8 o'clock Sunday night in Christ Presbyterian church.

Sue Equity Union

Iowa Construction Company Says Organization Did Not Pay Bills

Suit was filed in Milwaukee against the Wisconsin state union of the American Society of Equity late Wednesday by the Great Northern Construction Co. Dubuque for $4,241, alleged to be due for work done for the union. Seventy members of the union, including J. N. Tittensor, Omro, twice a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, are co-defendants. The complaint says that many of the defendants live in Milwaukee and that several live in Oshkosh.

The construction company alleges that between May 1 and Sept. 31, 1922, it built filling stations for the union at Weyauwega, Eau Claire, Mondovi, Dalton and Grafton. The bill was $14,323, of which $4,166 has not been paid according to the complaint. During the same period the company acted as agent for the union in the purchase of tanks for a filling station at Fall Creek, it declares, and earned a 3% commission, which has not been paid.

The union filed its answer, in which it makes a general denial of the allegations in the complaint.

Find Body of Drowned Boy After 24 Hour Hunt

WATERTOWN, Wis.—The body of Arthur Klingbeil, 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Klingbeil, who was drowned while swimming in a stream near Reaserle, was found today after a search of twenty-four hours. The boy was seized with cramps while swimming with an older brother and some friends.

Mother Chokes Guardian to Regain Babe

Warrants Issued; Hunt Auto In Milton Junction Affair

MILTON JUNCTION, Wis.—Two Milwaukee women and a man in an expensive automobile, were being sought Friday as the result of a feminine free-for-all fight and the kidnapping of 2½-year-old Robert Crandall, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Crandall, who live half a mile from this village.

Mrs. Marie Kreske, Milwaukee, is the mother of Robert and one of the trio sought. Her sister and a male companion are the other members of the trio. They are alleged to have taken Robert from his adopted parents by force after maneuvering to get Mr. Crandall away from home.

The trio visited the truck farm of the Crandalls last Sunday but Mrs. Crandall and Robert were in Waukesha. They announced they would return Thursday to visit Robert and would spend the week-end with the Crandalls.

Tuesday evening about 5 o'clock they returned. Mr. Crandall, believing the party had come for a visit, went to the village to get food. As soon as he had departed Mrs. Kreske is alleged to have remarked that the real reason for her visit was to get Robert and take him away, declaring she had never signed adoption papers. Mrs. Crandall protested that Robert could not go.

When Mrs. Crandall sought to keep Robert, Mrs. Kreske and her sister are alleged to have launched a hair-pulling and choking offensive. Mrs. Alfred Johnson, a neighbor, of the Crandalls, happened along and went to the aid of Mrs. Crandall. The male companion of the two Milwaukee women took no part in the contest.

After the baby had been put into the automobile, Mrs. Crandall leaped upon the running board and sought to regain possession of the child. The driver started the car and Mrs. Crandall was shoved off. She was taken to a doctor's office for treatment of numerous scratches and bruises inflicted by her assailants.

Mr. Crandall, on his return with provisions for the supposed week-end party, went to Milton where he swore out warrants.

Black Hawk Golf Star In Auto Accident

John Hackbarth Injures
Hand; Car Overturns
At Columbus

John Hackbarth, professional golfer at the Black Hawk country club, was slightly injured Thursday when the large sedan in which he and Dr. J. B. Baker, 40, Lakeside st., were riding, turned over on the highway near Columbus.

Mr. Hackbarth was on his way to enter the golf tournament at Pond du Lac, but because of the injury to his hand he did not enter.

He will enter the professional tournament at Maple Bluff country club next Sunday afternoon.

The accident occurred when Dr. Baker's car ran over a steel tire thrown off a wagon which was just ahead of him. Dr. Baker's car struck the tire as it laid in the road and turned over.

A Ford which was following Baker's car crashed into Baker's Franklin machine and was practically wrecked. About $500 damage was done to Dr. Baker's auto, it was reported.

"Cap" Knows Lake Moods; Predicts Decrease in Risks

"Yeah, it looked like a burning cottage across the lake," commented Captain Isabell on the launch catastrophe of the night here. Thus "Cap" adds another to hundreds of thrilling reminiscences. It is just an everyday occurrence to the life-saving captain who rescues about sixty persons from Lake Mendota each year.

If Captain Isabell wanted to, he could tell you more adventurous stories than are found in many books. Fierce storms and sudden squalls have risen suddenly, and half-drowned bunters have clung desperately to overturned canoes, when it seemed that each driving wave would end the exciting struggle. Then Captain Isabell would come to the rescue at the critical moment.

Each change of mood in the lake, the land-marks along the shore, and the little details which are distant canoes, are significant to the captain and his crew, who lounge on the bench on the pier. No incident passes the notice of their distance trained eyes.

It's hard to tell accidents in the distance," says Captain Isabell, as he squints out over the dazzling waves. "The weather has been bad this year, but everything else is all right so far. This is the height of the season, but the risks will be less from now on."

R. O. T. C. Displays Guards In Attack For Visitor's Day

Dean S. H. Goodnight has returned from Camp Custer recently, after witnessing the demonstrations of R. O. T. C. men and regulars as a part of the entertainment for the annual Visitor's Day program.

The R. O. T. C. infantry demonstrated a company in attack, which was in reality a sham battle. Engineering units spent the morning in solving tactical problems, while the cavalry finished their work at pistol marksmanship. The signal corps practiced in the field.

In the afternoon the regulars gave a huge "all arms" demonstration. The cavalry in attack, automatic rifles in action, the machine gun used as an anti-aircraft gun, the famous French 75 in bombardment were all demonstrated. The exhibition wound up with a spectacular maneuver of three armored tanks which attacked a strong-point, which was surrounded by pits and ditches.

A reception by Col. T. L. Sherbourne, camp commandant, in honor of the relatives and parents of the students, was held later in the afternoon in the assembly tent.

Better Wives and Mothers

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel stays that made a twenty inch waist and the long street sweeping skirts to the sports clothes of the present day has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. However, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backache, headache, nervousness and irritability. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. Thousands of women testify to its success.—Adv.

The Duncans in Court

Here are the Duncan Sisters, Vivian (left) and Rosetta and their brother, Harold, in court in Evanston, Ill. Rosetta's nose broken in a run-in with Cicero, Ill., police, following her brother's arrest for a traffic violation, still is bandaged and one eye still is discolored. The Duncans were all fined $1 and costs for disorderly conduct. They had carried their case to Evanston on a change of venue. Indications now are the Cicero policemen, especially Charles Widlock, shown in inset, also will have their day in court, for the Duncans have preferred charges against them.

3 In Narrow Escape When Cars Collide

Cars Crash 5 Miles Out

An automobile collision in which three persons escaped death occurred on the Verona road, five miles southwest of Madison, about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

A Nash sedan owned by Walter P. Hinrichs of Verona collided with an Overland car whose occupants were Louis Hessel and William Leffler of Dodgeville. The Overland car was demolished and turned over with Hessel and Leffler under the machine. Farmers rushed to the aid of Hessel and Leffler and they were rescued from under the car with only minor injuries. Hessel and Leffler maintain that Hinrichs was driving on the left hand side of the road.

"Stay At Home"

Washington Bureau,
The Capital Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republican campaign managers are counting upon the largest vote ever polled in a presidential election to bring success to Coolidge and Dawes.

Chairman William H. Butler predicts that the total response of the electorate will not be less than 30,000,000. This will be 3,250,000 more votes than were cast in 1920.

"I have every expectation that President Coolidge will gain by this increased total vote," declares Chairman Butler.

Republican leaders quite frankly concede that Sen. La Follette will draw heavily from the regular Republican strength, even though they are not willing to admit that the defection will be as serious as that which is to be suffered by the Democratic nominees.

For every vote lost, however, in the opinion of Chairman Butler, a take its place. It is the opinion of "new" voter will come forward to Republican strategists that the great stay-at-home vote is "conservative"—that it consists in the main of business and professional men, of women who have not yet accustomed themselves to the intricacies of the ballot, and party members who in 1920 took victory for granted and felt there was no necessity for their participation in the contest.

It is with this belief uppermost that Republican members are planning to put on an energetic campaign to get out the vote this year. The National Manufacturers' association is heavily financing an organization which sets itself the task of "aiding by all practicable and efficient means a full registration and vote of all qualified American citizens throughout the United States."

Bayfield County Bids for Fruit Crop Honors

BAYFIELD, Wis.—Bayfield county is making a bid for honors in fruit growing.

Prospects for a bumper fruit crop are better than in several years, according to V. E. Brubaker, county agricultural agent. Early estimates were that 75,000 cases of strawberries would be shipped out of the county during the season. Cherry trees and raspberry bushes are loaded and growers expect a bumper crop, he reports.

Fruit from the vicinity of Post Wing, Brule, and Moquah will be marketed through the Wisconsin-Bayfield marketing association. Brubaker says. Roadside marketing is also an important factor in promoting the crop. Tourists are buying freely and residents of northern Michigan and Minnesota iron ranges are coming in to buy fruit directly from the growers.

Hesselberg In Piano Recital; Given Ovation

200 Applaud Artist at College Club Benefit Event

Edouard Hesselberg, the master pianist, composer, and tone poet, gave a brilliant recital last night at 8:30 o'clock at the College Women's club as a formal dedication of the music room. An audience of about two hundred people were enraptured by his wonderful presentation and technique, and they gave him an enthusiastic applause.

His program was divided into three parts. The first part was a group of three nocturnes by Chopin: "F Sharp Major, Op. 15 No. 2," "D Flat Major, Op. 27 No. 2," "C Minor, Op. 48 No. 1." Part two consisted of a group of his own compositions "Daybreak," "Zephyrusque," "Chanson Oubliee" and "Midnight Revels." The third part was composed of (a) Solowei (The Nightingale), Allabioff, and (b) Marche Militaire (Shubert) each one of which was rearranged to some extent by Hesselberg.

Mr. Hesselberg gave a brief interpretation of each number. The nocturne "F Sharp Major, Op. 15 No. 2" is the best known and the longest of Chopin's nocturnes. This one in "C Minor, Op. 48 No. 1" may be called "The Cry of a Lost Soul." "Daybreak" is one part of a Russian suite. It is a picture of a day in Russia. "Chanson Oubliee" according to Mr. Hesselberg, can hardly be called his own. He said, "One night I dreamed it. I heard that beautiful piece over and over again. A man was playing the piano. I was Chopin. He seemed to say, 'I am Chopin and I am playing this for you to write. I died too soon and I want you to write it.'" Mr. Hesselberg got up, wrote the music and the next morning he did not remember writing it and it required hours of practice to work it up.

His interpretation of "The Nightingale" was infinitely superb. His fingers on the keys gave the effect of the flight, flutterings and the return of the bird. The trills prolonged the suspended animation.

The most popular encores were Schubert's "Romance" and "The Spanish Dance" one melodious and the other brilliant.

Mr. Hesselberg played with the utmost ease. His tone value and interpretation of the various numbers were outstanding.

Between the second and third groups Mrs. Leon Illis, formerly of the Wisconsin School of Music sang one of Hesselberg's vocal compositions, "The Sea Witch" accompanied by Hesselberg. Hesselberg's song was written for Madame Schuman-Heirik, and has not yet been published.

John Ainsley Master Thief BY Arthur Somers Roche Copyright 1924, NEA Service Inc. THE NEWIE'S JUSTICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, becomes a master cook—trapping upon other thieves. In a deal with a "fence" he arranges to dispose of a box of jewels which he stole from the White Eagle, a notorious international crook. The doorbell of his apartment rings. A man steps swiftly inside. "I come from Leedon," the intruder says. "Leedon was the name of the fence I was using when you were dicker with me today. I overheard you talk. And I decided that half of $300,000 would just about fix me up. Don't try to draw a gun; I've got you covered through my pocket."

NO GO ON WITH THE STORY

I do not think I am a coward. At any rate, I laughed at him.

"I suppose you expect me to believe that you'd shoot?" I asked.

"I guess you'll believe it when I tell you that I'm Swede Thomassen," he retorted. "Leedon gave me a thousand dollars. But what's a thousand dollars to me? I've got to have enough money so that I can play the part of the wealthy gentleman who has a whole suite on an ocean liner, whose privacy must be disturbed. I've got to have enough to bribe a lot of people if I want to make my getaway."

"Extremely interesting," said I. "But why come to me? Why not get it from your friend Leedon?"

"Because, as soon as Leedon saw tonight's papers, and found out why I was hiding, he made an excuse to get out. I didn't know he'd seen the papers or I'd never have let him go. I found the paper after he'd gone. And there's nothing I could prove against him. And anyway, which I could or not, he'd gone out to give me up. But you're different."

"You can't prove anything against me," I told him.

"I said you were different. Leedon could stand a scandal. He isn't afraid of them. He claims to be an honest pawnbroker. But you—what do you claim to be? Can you stand police inquiry into your life?"

"He was more intelligent and better educated than I had gathered from my newspaper reading. And he had me. Not merely literally, with a gun trained upon me, but figuratively, he had me. The suburban activities of such a man as Leedon were so well known to the police that fear of exposure by Thomassen would deter him from pawnbroke from delivering him up. It was by sometimes siding the police that Leedon obtained certain immunity. But my case was different. I could make no terms. And I was quite sure that if I refused Thomassen, he would, when captured, betray me out of that sheer hatred for the world which made him the best he was."

A man, then, whom I would have considered it a pleasurable duty to kill, had me at his mercy. And if I chose to perform that pleasurable duty, the action meant the end of my security. For even though I pretended that I had killed Thomassen while he was burglarizing my apartment, the police would inevitably ask me certain questions which I would not care to answer.

"A sensible man knows when he's licked," said Thomassen. "You look sensible."

"I expect me to hide you here while I'm waiting for Leedon to raise the money?" I demanded.

"The murderer shook his head. 'You'd be on the level. You'd have to be. But I'm going to get out of town tonight. Leedon isn't out of the box yet. Get out the box.'

"Do you think I keep them here?" I asked. "They're in a safe-deposit box downtown."

"Go get them," he ordered. "I'll be waiting right here."

And now sheer wrath at his insolence, combined with horror at his crime, made me forgetful of his threat of exposure—or if not forgetful, careless. But Thomassen was not merely intelligent; he was shrewd. The hand that was buried in his jacket pocket was withdrawn with a movement so speedy that I put to shame my own gift of leger.

"No you won't," he jeered. "Neither now nor later! You're a sensible man, Mr. Ainsley, or whatever you call yourself, as I said a minute ago. You won't step into a bullet when you haven't a chance. And I know what's going on in that brain of yours. You're figuring that you'll take me off your guard. But I know a gentleman when I see one. And I reckon you know a killer when you see one. You're a gentleman; I'm a killer. You give me your word of honor that you won't try to bump me off yourself, that you won't ring me or drug me or anything like that. I don't ask you to promise not to give me away to anyone. You'd have to give yourself away. I just want the promise I've asked."

"And if I don't give it?"

"I'm a killer," he replied. "I'll only go to the chair once. You give me your word within ten seconds, or I'll kill you."

He meant it; there was not the slightest doubt in mind as to that. It was the most humiliating moment of my life. Moreover, in addition to the humiliation, I suffered the pang of hope deferred. For I had no trade, no profession. On less than three hundred thousand dollars I could not hope to reestablish myself in my home town, under my proper name. And I must divide with this scoundrel!

"And of course, Mr. Ainsley, it's understood that you get the jewels the first thing in the morning, bring them here and divide."

"What could I do? I gave him my word."

I will say for him that, loathsome though he was, he knew blood. He knew that I would rather have died than break my word to him, even condition.

though that word had been obtained under duress.

He sighed with huge relief as soon as I had spoken.

"I haven't slept for two days," he said. "I'm going to bed. What time does your servant—I suppose you have one—get here?"

"In the morning at seven," I replied.

"Has he a telephone?" Thomassen inquired.

"She has," I corrected him. "Call her up and tell her—tell her anything, but see that she doesn't come here tomorrow."

Meekly I told his orders. Again I ask, what could I do? Thomassen had the insolence to grin at me when I hung up.

"Sweet and simple, isn't it?" And this is a whole lot better than getting out of New York tonight. I'm dead for sleep."

I will say for him that he had nerve, even though it might have been born of desperation or exhaustion. For, demanding to be shown a bed, he hurried himself up on it, and was sound asleep in a moment, leaving me alone with my thoughts.

They were not pleasant thoughts. Aside from the shattering of my dreams of rehabilitation, there was my vast self-concept at becoming a confederate in the murder of Thomassen's victim. Yet I had given my word, and the Ainsleys do not break their word.

And then, because I could not sleep, and because I could think only of the presence of the beast whom I sheltered, I began to examine the situation, to study the promise which I had made. I had said that I would bring the jewels here in the morning and divide them with my unwelcome guest. I had said that I would not try to kill Thomassen, or to strike him or drug him or anything like that. I had not promised that I would not betray him to the police. He was so confident that I would not dare do that thing, that he had not exacted any promise. I reasoned as I thought of this. He believed me to be so lost to decency that I would aid a filthy murderer to cheat justice rather than risk my own precious liberty.

Well, I would surprise him. I would slip outside, telephone the police and then—what? Thomassen, raptured, would describe me in detail; he would betray my acquaintance with Leedon. That worthy, professing of course that he did not know I was a thief, would give an even closer description of me. I would be a hunted fugitive. Instead of a gentleman who plied his surreptitious trade without suspicion.

Household Hints

CREAM SOUPS

Cream soups should be served for luncheon rather than for dinner where rich food is to follow.

GOOD SUBSTITUTES

Rice, spaghetti or macaroni may be frequently substituted on the daily menu.

DELICIOUS DESSERT

Cream cheese and currant jelly on crackers make a delicious dessert.

IRONING BOARDS

Be sure that your ironing board is placed in good light before you start your pressing and you will save much time.

FOR MIDSUMMER

The yellow hat for midsummer is seen in large or small shapes and is usually trimmed with flowers of the same shade.

TUCKED NET

Tucked net is very smart for collar and cuff outfits and for dummies and vests. It is newer than organdie or georgette crepe.

Short and long coats of cotton are equally smart and they are worn over silk frocks as well as cotton ones.

HOME-FURNISHING

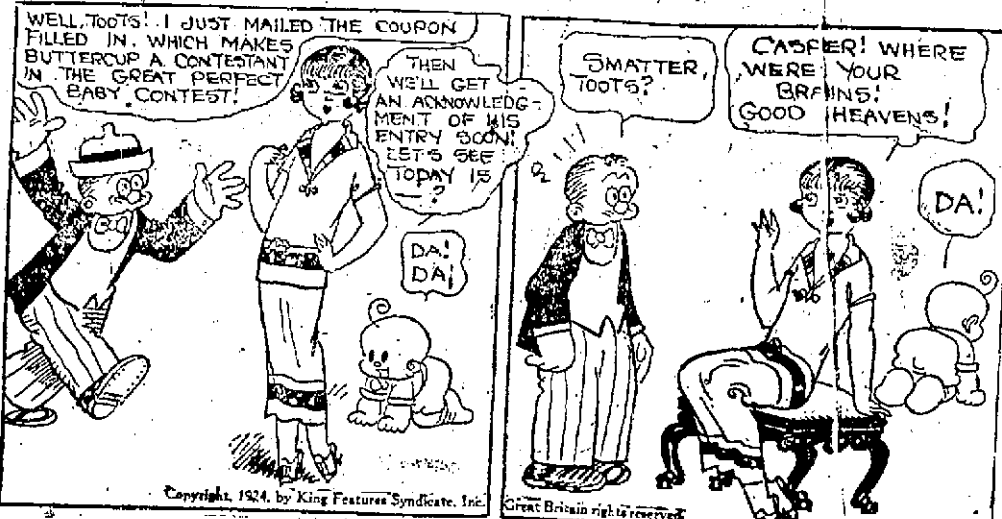

Linoleum

Whether your linoleum is printed or inlaid, a way to keep it looking fresh is to mop it occasionally with a floor wax swab—a weighted brush soaked with a good floor wax. This keeps the linoleum in flexible condition.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

(Copyright, 1924 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S

One day Mrs. Twistytail, the lady pig, gave Baby Bunty, the little rabbit girl, a penny.

"Oh, thank you, Mrs. Twistytail!" said Bunty.

"What are you going to buy with your penny?" asked the lady pig.

"I think I shall buy me a lollypop!" answered Bunty as she started to run toward the candy store.

But she had not gone very far before she soon came hopping back toward Mrs. Twistytail.

"That is it?" grunted the lady pig. "Do you want me to give you another penny?"

"Oh, no, indeed, thank you!" laughed Bunty. "But I came back to tell you that I have changed my mind. I am going to buy gum drops instead of a lollypop with the penny you gave me."

"Dear me, child!" chuckled Mrs. Twistytail, shaking all over like a bowl of jelly, she was so fat. "You needn't have come back to tell me that. Get whatever you like with your penny. It is yours to spend as you please. Only don't eat so much candy that you become ill."

"No, I won't!" promised Baby Bunty. "Anyhow," she said as she hopped on again, "you can't get sick on a penny's worth of candy—can you?"

"What's the matter?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"I am glad to know that!" laughed Mrs. Twistytail.

Well, Baby Bunty was hopping along, thinking how good the gum drops would taste when, all of a sudden she said:

"Oh, I think I'll get jelly beans instead of gum drops!"

She put her little paw in her little pocket to feel and see if her penny was safe, but to her surprise, she couldn't find it—I mean, she couldn't find her penny!

"Oh, it's lost!" cried Bunty, tears coming into her eyes. "My nice penny is lost! Now I can't get a lollypop, or any gumdrops or any jelly beans!" And she cried very hard.

Just then along came Uncle Wiggily.

"What's the matter?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"I have lost my penny—my penny!" sobbed Bunty. "I guess it now—fell down in that hole!" and she pointed to a hole in the ground.

"I'll help you look for it, Bunty," said Uncle Wiggily. So he poked around in the hole searching for the penny, but he couldn't find it, and then, all of a sudden, along came the Bob Cat.

"Hello!" yowled the Bob Cat, looking at Uncle Wiggily and Bunty. "What are you doing here?"

"He's looking for his lost penny!" said Baby Bunty. "What are you doing here, Bob Cat?"

"I'm here to nibble your ears!" snarled the Bob Cat. "But, findings is keepings! If I find your penny, I'm going to keep it!"

"Oh! Oh!" sobbed Bunty. "That isn't fair—so there!"

"I'll help you find it!" snarled the Bob Cat. "I'll go in that hole where Bunty said she had lost her penny. And just as the Bob Cat bent his head down to look for the money Uncle Wiggily gave him a push from behind.

Into the hole, fell the Bob Cat, howling and yowling. And the hole was so small that he was jammed in and couldn't get out for a long time.

"Come on, Bunty! Let's run and get the visiting list!"

he won't nibble our ears!" said Uncle Wiggily. He and Bunty ran away, leaving the Bob Cat in the hole. Mr. Longers was going to give Bunty another penny when she put her paw in her pocket and cried:

"Oh, my penny isn't lost after all! It's away down in a corner of my pocket!" And so it was, and Bunty was very glad. So she bought jelly beans and gave Uncle Wiggily some. As for the Bob Cat, he may be down in the hole yet, looking for a lost penny which isn't there—if he hasn't gotten out. And if the egg-beater will knock some dust out of the carpet up on the piano for the rag doll to write her name, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily—puffing a pipe.

The Tangle

(An intimate story of innermost emotions, revealed in private letters)

Of course, little Marquise, I dropped all preparations for my party and just sat down and waited. I wonder if you know what it means to wait for the inevitable? No torture in all the world is so terrible—when you know that nothing you can do will change in any way what is coming to you, and you must wait and wait.

I thought over carefully all the peculiar incidents that had occurred since Alice had clasped the pearls about my neck on my wedding day. I told myself that although I had not told Jack about it, yet I myself did not know they were real until months afterward.

Whatever I thought, however, I always came back to the fact that Jack, filled with rage, would soon be with me asking for information, and that he would probably be more furious when he learned the truth. I wondered wearily if I could go on with the party if the whole matter was not settled some way before the next night.

Through all these unhappy thoughts came the question: Who could have told Jack? No one but Karl, Alice Ruth and myself knew the whole story, and I am sure not one of them would have told. I was sure of Karl and Ruth, but—surely my sister would not go such a despicable thing!

The clock kept ticking, "Wait and see—wait and see—wait and see—"

While I was trying with what patience I had to take the insistent little clock advice, the phone again rang. Sally Atherton was on the wire.

"Say, Leslie, I don't want to butt in on your affairs, but I just want to put you wise to something I think you ought to know. I heard your husband telephoning you about a string of pearls. I didn't mean to listen, but he was so excited he was talking at the top of his voice, and you know my desk is in the same room."

"This morning, I opened a letter from New York that was not marked personal, and found that some sounder had written Mr. Prescott an anonymous letter asking him if he knew that lovely string of pearls you had been wearing was real."

"Now, I don't know whether those beads are real pearls or not, but I just wanted you to know that Mr. Prescott got his information anonymously."

"I'm going to break my solemn vow and come to your party. I had not intended to do so, but I am so angry over this anonymous letter that I want you to know that if I can do anything to help you in any way, I will do it."

Of course, I thanked Sally, and I was glad to know where Jack found it all out, but I could not help feeling unhappy that any one knew that Jack and I were quarreling. All the while she was talking to me I was wondering if it could be possible that my own sister could be so horrid as to have written a letter to Jack. I could think of one else who knew about them who would do so.

Pretty soon Jack came in and threw a letter into my lap. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

Enid Bennett Has Startling Role

Enid Bennett in "The Red Lily"

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLYWOOD—Fred Niblo was in a melancholy mood when he projected "The Red Lily," an early release by the Goldwyn-Metro-Mayer combine.

It is a powerful but depressing drama of love trailed through the insensate fate which takes no account of human striving toward the ideal. Only the salvage of their sullied lives is permitted the victims as reward of ceaseless striving. And audiences are likely to consider that meager reward unsatisfactory, if not depressing.

The picture traces the fortunes of a mayor's son and a cobbler's daughter from idyllic romance in Brittany to sordid chapters in Paris, where on the eve of proposed marriage they are separated by a faithful intervention. In the purloins of Paris the white lily of Brittany, driven to desperation by need, becomes sordid. And the boy, despairing of finding his sweetheart, drifts to a life of crime.

Enid Bennett as "Marise" is in a powerful role. Her usual placid, tender demeanor is completely overlaid by the pathetic graving of harassment among the Parisian demimonde. She gives an arresting performance, a blinding character study.

Ramon Novarro, too, presents a new camera personality as the hopeless, sullen victim of a father's meddling and misunderstanding. Novarro shows a dignity and power ripening with each new performance. He displays it notably in this picture.

AT THE PARKWAY

No greater picture than "The Man Life Passed By" has been presented at the Parkway in months. While sombre in theme it has many high lights, an avalanche of action and peppered with peril and punch. Percy Marmont has the role of the embittered inventor, and who seeks revenge against the rich capitalist who stole his invention. The other roles are superbly handled by Herbert Bosworth, Jane Novak, Eva Novak and Cullen Landis.

Jack Dempsey reveals himself as a clever comedian. In the third of the series of Fight and Win he plays a job countryman who meets the champion fighter of a small town circus and defeats him. "The Law Forbids" a drama telling the evils of divorce comes Sunday to the Parkway. Baby Peggy, petite child star, is featured.

AT THE ORPHEUM

There is nothing just as good and nothing better in its line than "Twin Beds" which is being presented at the Orpheum next week by the Dorothy La. Vorn Players. When "Twin Beds" made its debut and was such a hit that producers everywhere began to give nothing but the so called bed room scenes. They have come and gone but "Twin Beds" still draws capacity crowds.

It is a clean comedy and although the name perhaps is a bit suggestive you will not find a suggestive line in the play. For the balance of this week "So This is London."

AT THE STRAND

"Daring Love," the screen adaptation of Albert Payson Terhune's well-known novel "Driftwood," in which the talented Elaine Hammerstein plays the leading role, is the feature attraction now being shown at the Strand theater. "Daring Love" is an unusually dramatic story of the romance which came into the life of an enterprising, a tawdry little case. A Charlie Chase comedy, latest news weekly and Spotlight review are the added features.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE TELLS "MY OWN STORY"

A Story of Adventures in Politics
---the History of the Progressive Movement, Told By Its Leader.

Senator LaFollette first bucked the bosses back in 1880, when he ran for district attorney of Dane county—and won. From then on he traces, in a most interesting narrative style, the development of the progressive movement and his own political battles. He also tells how corporation politicians bought delegates to the state convention after a majority of them had been elected to support the progressive candidate for governor, how the legislators were controlled and bills in the interests of the people were killed. From Wisconsin, LaFollette went to Washington and his story tells the efforts of private interests to control federal legislation, to corrupt officials and to block prosecution. "My Own Story" is an interesting, intimate picture of American politics.

THIS BIG FEATURE STARTS MONDAY

This great story will be of special interest to Madison and Dane county. Senator LaFollette was born in the town of Primrose in southwestern Dane county and he grew to manhood in this county. A large part of the story is laid in Madison and the characters mentioned by Senator LaFollette are all familiar to the people of Madison.

"My Own Story" will be profusely illustrated with photographs and illustrations of the great fight made by LaFollette in the last 30 years. The days of Philetus Sawyer, the dramatic incidents of early day campaigns, all these are told in the graphic language of Senator LaFollette.

The greatest Madison newspaper feature of the year. Senator LaFollette's "My Own Story" will appear exclusively beginning next Monday in

Herriot Still In Deadlock With Bankers

Guarantee Question Still Proving Stumbling Block

(By the Associated Press.)
LONDON—Every effort to break the deadlock which has apparently halted the work of the inter-allied conference, called for the purpose of putting the Dawes plan on reparations into effect, has thus far been unsuccessful.

The conference stumbling block is the differences between Premier Herriot of France and the British and American financiers over the sufficiency of the guarantees which must accompany the proposed for a million pound loan to Germany. The bankers insist that they are interested only in the proper security for the loan and that they will expect a formula embodying their outline to be produced before they will approve the loan.

France maintains her original stand, namely, that she will abide by the treaty of Versailles and that in the event of default German reparations she will have the right to impose penalties, no matter whether the other allies collaborate or not. The financiers, while recognizing the French viewpoint, as frank in stating that the safety of the loan guarantees would be menaced if the nation alone could act in the matter of defaults.

Premier Herriot's position at home has much to do with the present case. That the government might not survive his surrender to the financiers' arguments is known.

Madison women who have interested themselves in the charges made in an article in the recently issued Proletarian that city girls are companions of students on drinking parties were in consultation with prominent Madison attorneys Friday, regarding action to be taken against the publishers if legal steps are possible.

The magazine is not sent through the mails and contemplated action through federal authorities has been dropped on this account. Whether or not it will be possible to obtain university officials to register a complaint with the publisher is being discussed by leaders of the girls' groups and their advisors.

No complaint regarding the publication have been received at the office of Dean Goodnight Friday. The university does not recognize the Proletarian as an official publication but it is believed that officials of the institution might take action of continued unfavorable publicity is published regarding students and the university itself. Sales of the magazine are forbidden on the university grounds.

NEILSVILLE, Wis.—Gov. John J. Blaine speaking here at noon Friday declared that the increase in taxes noted in the state is due to highways, schools and education. "Highways have been the principal cause of the increased taxation," he said. "The highway problem has been excessive and unreasonable."

Although the state does not show a single dollar of state indebtedness, the governor said this condition is not so in the counties, where authorized bonds for more than $42,000,000 for highway construction have resulted from campaigns for highways.

"Under my administration there has been no additional state tax levied. In fact taxes upon general property—real estate and personal paid into the state treasury are

SUFFERED TWELVE YEARS WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"My recovery has been a surprise to myself and all my friends," recently declared Jacob Ferdinand, R. F. D. 2, Fond Du Lac, Wis., a prominent citizen of this city, in relating his remarkable experience with Tanlac.

"The suffering I went through from stomach trouble for 12 or 13 years simply can't be described. In my efforts to find relief I spent over one thousand dollars, but kept getting worse instead of better. A large part of two years I was laid up in bed and for four months of that time I couldn't get up at all.

"Finally I sent my daughter for a bottle of Tanlac with the result that I found immediate relief, and seven bottles made a well and happy man of me. I will gladly talk to anyone personally and answer all letters regarding my experience with Tanlac. It proved a godsend to me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Overrule Plea That Body Is Without Wage Jurisdiction

(By the Associated Press.)
CHICAGO—The U. S. Railway Labor board today over-ruled and disallowed the plea of non-jurisdiction by counsel for railroad employees of Western railroads in their disputes on wages and rules, and ordered the taking of testimony of witnesses subpoenaed both from the carriers and the employees.

Argument of the employees that the board was illegally assuming jurisdiction and was without power to summon witnesses to involuntary testimony was denied in an unanimous opinion of the board read by Chairman G. M. Hopper "whether that power was questioned by the brotherhood or witnesses."

Brookhart, Catholic Women Open Norris Stir World-Wide Campaign G. O. P. Ire For Modesty In Dress

Both Favor La Follette;
No Open Declaration
Yet Made

Washington Bureau
The Capital Times

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sen. Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa and Sen. George W. Norris of Nebraska, both candidates for re-election this year on the Republican ticket and both members of the La Follette group in the Senate, have not expected to declare openly for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket within the first weeks of the presidential campaign.

Progressive leaders here frankly admit they will make no effort to bring Norris and Brookhart into line behind their national ticket. Senators La Follette and Wheeler have both announced they will lend the support of their national organization to the Nebraska and Iowa Senators but neither has solicited an endorsement of his own candidacy.

Before Sen. Norris left Washington for his summer home in Wisconsin he was considering withdrawing his name from the Republican ticket in order to take the stump openly for La Follette. He made no secret of his allegiance to La Follette but felt he could not consistently run on the same ticket with President Coolidge and support La Follette on another ticket.

Sen. Brookhart took about the same position. Senator Norris has now determined to maintain his position on the Republican ticket and for the present to take no part in the campaign.

Republican leaders here are by no means satisfied with the position of either of the "insurgent" Senators. Neither Norris nor Brookhart will receive any help from the national organization of their party in the form of campaign funds or speakers, and at Republican headquarters here encouragement is being given to the plan of putting up "regular" in Iowa, on the independent ticket, as a means of defeating Brookhart.

The Progressive leaders at Washington make no secret of their delight at this proposal. They take the position that Senators Brookhart and Norris would both be committing themselves on the presidential campaign, but they believe that both will come out for La Follette openly in the course of the campaign. Open opposition to their candidacies, from members of their own party, would constitute an "overt act" of party "irregularity" furnishing them ample justification for bolting President Coolidge in the opinion of the Progressives.

Three Declare Openly
Up to the present time, only three United States Senators have declared openly for La Follette, but since La Follette himself and Wheeler are both members of the Senate, five senatorial votes are thus far claimed for the ticket. The other three supporters of the independent movement are Senators Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, and Frazier and Ladd, Republicans, of North Dakota.

The only Democrats who are regarded as likely to endorse the independent ticket openly are Dill, of Washington, Ashurst of Arizona, and possibly Adams of California. Senator Walsh of Massachusetts is understood to have given Senator Wheeler some encouragement to enter the field as La Follette's running-mate, but he is himself a candidate for re-election in Massachusetts this year and it is doubtful if he will openly bolt his party. Walsh's following in Massachusetts is not warm to John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate.

The ultimate attitude of Senator Borah of Idaho in respect to the three presidential candidates has not yet been clarified. Senator Borah recently gave out a public statement predicting, La Follette would poll a "surprisingly large vote" but more recently he praised President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon as "Courageous men who are needed at Washington." Sen. Borah is now in Idaho, making plans for his campaign for re-election. The Progressives have formed in the last election and the leaders of this group have wired La Follette headquarters here predicting Borah will openly declare for La Follette before the close of the campaign.

Sen. Wheeler of Missouri and Sen. Johnson of California have maintained a discreet silence since the party conventions. Read is a close personal friend of La Follette's and went into Wisconsin in 1920 to campaign for the La Follette candidate for Senator against the Democratic and Republican nominees. Should John W. Davis continue his advocacy of the League of Nations, it is believed Read will refuse to support the Democratic ticket. Progressives here hope Read will endorse La Follette, although Read and La Follette are not in agreement on many important economic issues. It is regarded by impartial observers as more likely that both Read and Johnson will stay out of the presidential campaign, withholding their endorsement from any candidate.

The La Follette-Wheeler ticket will have the support of a large number of members of the House of Representatives. Between twenty-five and forty members of the House, who are candidates for re-election, will line up openly for the independent ticket, according to Representative John M. Nelson, national campaign manager.

"We are not seeking endorsements from men in public office," Nelson stated recently at Washington. "The Progressive movement is dependent upon popular support, not upon the support of political leaders, for its success."

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Actuated by the expressed sentiments of Pope Pius XI, the National Council of Catholic Women has started a campaign against immodesty in dress and is sending out cards to its 100,000 members asking each to sign a pledge to observe modesty in attire.

The pledge card starts with a prayer to the Virgin Mary, "Our Lady of Good Counsel," followed by this statement:

"At the last annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, a resolution was adopted urging Catholic women to observe in public and private life the standards of Catholic teaching particularly in regard to dress."

"In accordance with the spirit of this resolution, the National Council of Catholic Women calls upon its members and their friends to enlist in a great crusade which has for its object the spread of Catholic faith, and the observance of Catholic standards."

"Will you join and get as many others as you can to join?"

The pledge concludes as follows:

"Resolved, that I will observe in private and public life the standards of Catholic teaching, particularly with regard to dress, reading and entertainment."

The pledges are being mailed from the headquarters of the council, 1-312 Massachusetts ave., Washington, D. C. The national president is Mrs. Michael Gavin, this city, who is a daughter of the late James J. Hill.

Mrs. Gavin said that not only were the pledge cards being mailed to members of the council in the states, but they were also being dispatched to Catholic women in Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Panama canal zone and the Philippine Islands.

"Ever since our council was founded it has taken a definite stand against immodesty in dress," said Mrs. Gavin.

"At our first convention we passed a resolution to pledge our concerted efforts to restore those conventions of dress and action that have always been an intrinsic factor in the influence of good women."

The campaign probably will be made world-wide as the American council is affiliated with the International Union of Catholic Women's League, which has branch organizations in thirty-three countries.

Cardinal Hayes is away on his summer vacation, but it was said at Archdiocesan headquarters yesterday that he had not sent out any orders from the chancery office. It was said that the Cardinal took the ground that the matter of dress is such a personal matter that he hesitated to issue any official mandate unless conditions made it unavoidable.

Edward's Park Crossing Will Be Investigated
Another conference aiming toward a settlement in the Edwards Park railroad crossing case, in which three Rockford, Ill., residents were killed the morning of June 5, will be held at 10 a. m. next Monday in the offices of the state railroad commission.

Commission members re-visited the scene of the crash this week. They have summoned town of Bloomington officials to attend the conference.

The ultimate attitude of Senator Borah of Idaho in respect to the three presidential candidates has not yet been clarified. Senator Borah recently gave out a public statement predicting, La Follette would poll a "surprisingly large vote" but more recently he praised President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon as "Courageous men who are needed at Washington."

Councilmen Oppose School Fund Request As Unnecessary
A virtual attempt to "put something over on the common council" was the way one alderman Friday characterized the request of the education board for the bond issue of $320,000 which was approved by the council at its last meeting for the construction of an auditorium and gymnasium to the East Side high school.

This alderman announced that a reconsideration of the council's action in passing the bond issue may be asked at the councilmen meet Friday night.

He said the first figure given the council concerning the cost of these two additions to the school was $200,000, and he further stated that it is his opinion that the $320,000 approved by the council is excessive.

He recalled that the card asked the council for funds to buy an additional strip of land on which the auditorium and gymnasium would be built. The council frowned upon this proposition, expressing the belief that the school grounds are of sufficient size without buying more land.

He declared he believes the board intends to obtain the additional amount of $120,000 and intends to go over the council's head in obtaining the property.

The anti-smoke ordinance may be recalled to the floor of the council from the files of the ordinance committee for action, it was intimated Friday. The ordinance was passed last fall. An amendment asking that a full time smoke inspector be provided was adopted resulting in the law being returned to the ordinance committee where it has been held since.

Ald. W. L. Woodward, father of the ordinance, is determined to have the ordinance adopted with the amendment before next winter so that it can become effective in curbing the smoke nuisance in the city. An examination of candidates will be held by the police and fire commission immediately upon adoption of the ordinance.

A report on the ownership of the N. Carver st. bathhouse and disposition of the property in future will be submitted to the council by Roman A. Hellman, city attorney.

Claims School Board Seeks to Trip City

Councilmen Oppose School Fund Request As Unnecessary

A virtual attempt to "put something over on the common council" was the way one alderman Friday characterized the request of the education board for the bond issue of $320,000 which was approved by the council at its last meeting for the construction of an auditorium and gymnasium to the East Side high school.

This alderman announced that a reconsideration of the council's action in passing the bond issue may be asked at the councilmen meet Friday night.

He said the first figure given the council concerning the cost of these two additions to the school was $200,000, and he further stated that it is his opinion that the $320,000 approved by the council is excessive.

He recalled that the card asked the council for funds to buy an additional strip of land on which the auditorium and gymnasium would be built. The council frowned upon this proposition, expressing the belief that the school grounds are of sufficient size without buying more land.

He declared he believes the board intends to obtain the additional amount of $120,000 and intends to go over the council's head in obtaining the property.

The anti-smoke ordinance may be recalled to the floor of the council from the files of the ordinance committee for action, it was intimated Friday. The ordinance was passed last fall. An amendment asking that a full time smoke inspector be provided was adopted resulting in the law being returned to the ordinance committee where it has been held since.

Ald. W. L. Woodward, father of the ordinance, is determined to have the ordinance adopted with the amendment before next winter so that it can become effective in curbing the smoke nuisance in the city. An examination of candidates will be held by the police and fire commission immediately upon adoption of the ordinance.

A report on the ownership of the N. Carver st. bathhouse and disposition of the property in future will be submitted to the council by Roman A. Hellman, city attorney.

Billy Black Hawk Golfers Win From Fond du Lac 46 to 29

Evans Says

Heavy Rain Slows Up Link Match

M'Intyre-Hackbarth Duel Called Off; Latter Is Injured

APPARENTLY football and baseball have nothing in common as far as the college athlete is concerned.

A goodly number of the college gridiron stars also double in baseball. In late years the majors have been giving the college fields much consideration.

During the fall months the football prestige of certain star athletes causes them to become national characters in the world of sport.

In all probability football fame has had more to do with a number of college stars getting a big league baseball trial than natural ability.

Of course, there are exceptions to every rule. Two of the game's greatest second basemen, Eddie Collins and Frankie Frisch, started in college football.

Collins won fame in the old days when the forward pass was unknown, when football was a survival of the fittest. Frisch won his gridiron honors at Fordham.

For these two who have become major league stars, it is possible to point out any number of failures. It seems a degree of fate that only a very few athletes are permitted to become outstanding stars in more than one sport.

Football is a strenuous game. It takes a lot out of a player physically. It is possible that football so uses up the contestants that many an athlete who would have starred in baseball is seriously handicapped.

The recent decision of Hinkle Haines, former member of the New York Yankees, to give up baseball and go into the tobacco business with his father, is the latest example of the college football star who has been transferred to the Louisville club of the American Association, when he reached the decision that if he wasn't a big leaguer he wouldn't be anything.

Haines, by the way, is the player who scored the winning run in the sixth game of the world series that gave the Yankees the 1923 title.

Perhaps the greatest baseball disappointment of the college field in the last 10 years was Glenn Killinger.

One of the greatest football players of all time, a unanimous All-American selection, heralded by his coach, Hugo Bezdek, as great a ball player as any since Jim Thorpe, yet as a big leaguer he was very ordinary.

Mohardt and Caster, two of the most famous athletes ever turned out at Notre Dame, brilliant football players, failed signally in their big league trial. Apparently football and baseball don't mix.

Bosworth Sets Season Mark At Kalamazoo

Taggart's Entry Does Mile in 2:05 1/2 In First Heat

(By The Associated Press) KALAMAZOO — Splendid early season time was hung up in the colts' stakes, which featured the fourth day of Kalamazoo's grand circuit.

In the first heat of the $2,000 Purse Colonel Bosworth, Tom Taggart's Colored horse, splendidly driven by Lon McDonald, did the mile in 2:05 1/2, the fastest time of the season for a 3 year old, and within two seconds of the world's record.

In the second heat Eria Guy, the Canadian filly, beat the Hoosier under the wire by a length and repeated in the third mile, but several seconds slower.

Sam Williams, driven by W. Cox in the 2 year old trot, hung up the best time of the season by registering 2:09 3/4 for the distance. Hot Rodde took the second heat in 2:14.

The two $3,000 features on the day's card were fast picking for Monny Murphy. In the 2:13 trot, Little Brooke, the favorite, led all the way and took the three heats easily. Hollywood Frisco had second place and Voltage was always third.

In the 2:11 pace Baronworthy, the Kentucky favorite, did about as he pleased. He was never headed, and the argument was between Trampalane and Ribbon Candy, with the former having the best of it.

Edward (Pop) Geors, grove Peter Manning, champion trotter, the mile in 2:02 3/4, equaling the track record.

He will probably leave for the east within a week.

JANESVILLE, Wis. — Cyril Walker, national open golf champion, and Bobby Chickbank, noted professional, are expected to play an exhibition match at the Janesville Country club here on Saturday.

FOND DU LAC — Playing in a heavy rainstorm which made good scores difficult of achievement, the Black Hawk golfers, twenty eight in all, won from the Fond du Lac golf club 46 to 29.

The match between Neil Mc Intyre, Fond du Lac pro who is state pro champion, and John Hackbarth pro at Black Hawk was called off as Hackbarth was slightly injured in the wreck of Dr. J. B. Baker's Franklin car. Hackbarth's hand was hurt and as he is entered in the professional tournament which begins Sunday at Maple Bluff, playing yesterday would have aggravated the injury.

QUESTIONS

1. Kind, give your opinion of this play, as there is 10-inning scores game depending on the left-hander at the bat, runner on second, when batsman hits the line drive to the about the pitcher on which he could make no play. The umpire standing close to second was hit on the head by the ball as it came in the direction of the bat as the contact was slight, and is continued on its way to the outfield, getting past the holder. The batsman made the circuit, scoring the runner ahead of him. The runner was not an infield hit, but a terrific drive, and, after striking the umpire, landed far past second base, still in the air.

2. Pitcher throws ball to batsman standing in his box with his bat on his shoulder. Ball was to slide to the plate that batter, in trying to hit the ball, hit the pitcher's head. The pitcher was not an infield hit, but a terrific drive, and, after striking the umpire, landed far past second base, still in the air.

3. The happening was a tough break for the team at bat, when the umpire is hit by a batted ball, on which no play has been made, the ball becomes dead. The batsman is entitled to first on no runners can advance and is forced. The runner on second simply remains there and batsman goes to first.

4. It is a strike. When bat comes into contact with a wildly pitched ball, whatever happens is legal. It would have been a fair ball.

Blues Again Drubbed By American Giants By 15 to 2 Score

7 Errors By Locals Gives Game Away

Dusky Champs Walk All Over Blues In Weird Contest

By HANK CASSERLY

Bunting the ball to all parts of the infield and catching the Blues flat footed on most of these bunts the American Giants, led by the ball team beat themselves at Kipp Field Thursday 15 to 2.

It was the second straight defeat in two days for Lenahan's athletes and as on Wednesday the visitors outplayed the home boys and the result of all this was a terrific drubbing for Madison. The Blues who had played bang up baseball until this series seemed to be in a trance and made seven errors in yesterday's pastime. The colored boys simply ran the locals ragged and when these Giants get a couple of runs to the good they are about unbeatable.

La Hail blew up in the second inning and two wild throws one to field to Gardner, Mohardt fanned, the balloon ascension. From that time on the home boys continued to avenge at regular intervals throughout the game.

The Giants scored in the second as follows. Gardner flied to Gill's Torrence hit one through Gill for a single. La Hail threw wild to first runner to Catch Torrence off the leg and the ball advanced to second. Williams rolled a slow one to La Hail who threw to Catch Torrence at third. Elliot had come in to field the ball and no one was there to take Hank's throw. Torrence scoring. Hines went out Reudiger to Lenahan and Ware flied to Mc Emery.

Madison came back and tied the count in their half. Kleinheinz flied to Gardner, Mohardt fanned, but Mc Emery doubled to Center, and scored on Reudiger's hit to center. Stampf singled to left, but La Hail ended the inning by grounding out Harney to Ware.

Foster's team scored three runs in the third on one hit. Harney singled to center, Melarher was hit on the head by one of Hank La Hail's fast ones, De Moss got on La Hail's error on which Reudiger scored. Brown advanced both runners with a sacrifice and at home, but Melarher was safe. Gardner scored second and De Moss scored on an infield out Reudiger to Lenahan, Williams went out La Hail to Lenahan, ending the misery.

The visitors annexed two more in the fourth.

Three more runs were added to the Giants' lead in the fifth, two in the sixth off Mohardt who relieved La Hail on the mound, two in the seventh and one in the eighth, ninth bringing the total to fifteen.

The Blues got their second run in the sixth. Kleinheinz and Mohardt both flied out to Gardner, but Mc Emery crashed one over the fence and Reudiger duplicated Mac's feat scoring. Moharher, Stampf went out Melarher to Ware ending the rally.

Madison failed to score in the seventh, eighth and ninth.

The Blues meet the Ft. Wayne Collegians in a two game series Saturday and Sunday at the local stadium. This team is composed of ex-college stars mainly from Notre Dame.

Tunney Hands K. O. to Carpenter In 15th Round

Hank Casserly's Column

Bedlam Reigns After French Star Collapses

Claim of Low Blow In 14th Denied; Comes Back for K. O.

NEW YORK — Georges Carpenter, colorful light heavyweight, war hero and idol of first class, today a retired pugilist, figuratively, knocked out of the ring by the stinging left hand of Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion.

Taps were sounded on Carpenter's career last night at the Polo Grounds, when he was technically stopped by Tunney in the fifteenth round of a scheduled 15 round match after one of the greatest and most valiant endeavors ever made by a fighter to combat a superior foe.

Knocked down four times in that heroic tenth round, battered into virtual submission by an attack which threatened to break the very ribs which supported his tottering frame, Carpenter stood up to his punishment, as only a game man can, displaying the white flag of defeat only after a blow, which he felt was foul, doubled him to the floor in a writhing pain and made further participation impossible.

A tense, dramatic scene was staged in the 15th round.

A spectacle of a blonde haired Frenchman, pawing the air with his gloves, with his features writhing in agony. In front of him stood a tall, dark haired American with his hands down, who refused to hit his opponent.

Thirty thousand spectators stood on benches, chairs, and on each other's shoulders, yelling, shrieking, cursing and making all sorts of noises. They couldn't understand why Tunney didn't mow down his antagonist. The uproar was so loud that it was impossible for Announcers to give the ring the tidings. He walked around the ring informing the scribes of the ruling.

The starting battle was brought about by a sensational happening in the fourteenth round. Tunney had Carpenter against the ropes, pulling both hands viciously to the body. Suddenly Carpenter uttered a low cry, his face took on a sad expression, he sank to the floor and fell on his face.

The referee refused to pay any attention to the plea. Before he started to count the bell rang and Carpenter's seconds jumped up and carried him to his corner. As the Frenchman sat on his chair his eyes rolled in agony and his chair lay on its side. Buckers of water were thrown over him. His manager shrieked for the referee to come over and examine the injury.

Griffin refused, so when the bell clanged Carpenter staggered out and adopted a pose that was pitiable and gave up. Then came the denouement and the fight was history.

To those who were close at hand the blow was a little low, but not nothing as damaging as Carpenter claimed. It was unintentional. It looked as if the Carpenter, who wanted to take advantage of the only way of changing defeat into victory.

Both fighters were well under the light heavy-weight limits. Carpenter weighed 173 and Tunney a quarter of a pound more. The bout was for the American light heavyweight title, held by Tunney.

Some idea of the magnitude of the playground work in Madison can be gleaned from the weekly attendance reports as given out by Lorain Cockrell director of the local playgrounds.

Read Capital Times Want Ads.

It happens in the best regulated families. The Blues received the worst trimming of their career Thursday at Kipp Field 15 to 2, but what of it. They can't win them all. True they played like a bunch of grammar school boys, but then they do the same thing in the big leagues.

It's no disgrace to be beaten by the American Giants, a team that won from the Detroit Tigers 5 to 3 with the full strength of the Tigers in the game with the exception of Cobb. Yes and this same Harney hurled the game too. The Blues have been playing super baseball all season and it is to be expected that they are liable to slip a few gears on occasions. If not all interest would be gone from the game, if no teams could take their measure.

One thing is certain however, the Giants are not the same ball club unless Rube Foster, who owns the club is with them. Their first appearance on Madison they looked about as good as Gilkerson's nine, but this time with Rube to direct the play from the bench, and do their thinking for them, they looked unbeatable.

Foster is just as brainy a manager as John McGraw, and he can give up the opposition quicker than any man living. With this master of strategy present, the visitors made the locals look bad on several occasions.

After the game was lost, manager Lenahan sent Mohardt in to twirl in place of La Hail. Johnny showed plenty of speed, but his control was a little poor, and when he succeeded in getting them over the plate the colored stars socked the horsehide for fair.

Mc Emery continued his good work with the stick, cracking out two doubles and scoring the only two runs made by the home boys. Mac's work has improved since his shift to the outfield and he is the most dangerous hitter on the club in a pinch.

The Giants had the Blues' infield all upset with their bunting game. In the third inning they scored three runs. An one hit using this means of crossing up the home boys. And how these colored players can lay the ball in front of the bunting game can be seen in either of the big leagues.

Franz Kleinheinz is in a batting slump. The big boy cannot seem to connect as of yore, but hopes to regain his batting eye by Saturday when the locals play the first of a two game series with the Ft. Wayne Collegians, composed entirely of ex-college stars.

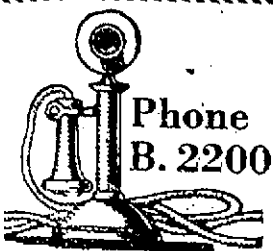

The members of Nels Norgreen's baseball squad are feeling pretty low at present. All set for the tour of the orient which had been arranged for them, the athletes are hugely disappointed at the calling off of the leading Japanese institution.

"Dave" Wilson, captain of the Illinois football team of 1922, has been appointed assistant football coach at the University of Illinois. Wilson has been coaching the Appaer pion high school teams since his graduation, and was present with his team at the Wisconsin high winter here. He failed to show any amount of basketball brains for semi-finals he let them try to run them for the finals by stalling, and come he awoke from his state of last minute of play. He can't pull many bloomers like that and be on friendly terms with Zupke.

Doc Nelson's horse Riser Patchen wins a pacing race at Otter. Patchen is about the most unbeatable horse on the track today, but has a wonderful burst of speed. Nelson however would never win a race with his horse until they forced him in 1922 at the Dane County Fair. The horse a few years ago was worth a fortune to a dealer.

Emil Hartman, Heinie Kloos, Dr. Baker, Eddie Trench, Chris Oldenberg are others who will make the trip to the skat meet in the German town.

Speaking of Johnny Seymour reminds us that on Tuesday he saw his first game of golf. John was

Wisconsin Still Seventh in Militarism

UP at Camp Douglas, the annual fanfare of Wisconsin's military display is in progress. Thousands of young men are marching. The bands are playing. The guns are booming. The reviewing stands beam as the boys go marching by.

Well, why not?

Do you know, Mr. and Mrs. Citizen of Wisconsin that Wisconsin is today the seventh state in the union in militarism? Do you know that in spite of the big cut made in appropriations in the last legislature that there are only six states in the union having a larger national guard than Wisconsin's.

And this in a state that is overwhelmingly committed to peace! This in a state controlled by progressives who have made attacks on militarism one of the cardinal points in their platforms!

YESTERDAY was governor's day at Camp Douglas. In his address, Gov. Blaine said:

"There is in the guard today 5,400 officers and men."

From an examination of the annual report of the Chief of the Military Bureau of the U. S. War Department for June 30th, 1923 (the last available figures) The Capital Times learns that there were only six states in the union having a larger national guard than Wisconsin's. The states having larger guards follow:

Illinois	7,090
Massachusetts	8,808
New York	20,290
Ohio	7,721
Pennsylvania	11,712
Texas	7,801

IN 1915, the strength of the Wisconsin National Guard was 3,291. In other words, the national guard in this state today is 70 per cent larger than it was before the war.

In his address the governor said:

"There are in the guard today, 5,400 officers and men operating in the last year at an expenditure of $212,000 or $348,000 less than in the previous year."

"These accomplishments could not have been made without the whole hearted support of every officer and every man in the guard, and I assure you all that it is with great satisfaction and appreciation that I note there has been such splendid cooperation."

Why not give credit where credit is due, governor? The credit for the saving of that $348,000 a year to the taxpayers of Wisconsin is due to that courageous little group of progressive women in this state who started the campaign to cut national guard expenditures. That saving is also due to the courageous group of progressive assemblymen who were assailed as "radicals" and "bolshheviks" because they had the temerity to ask that the appropriations of $600,000 a year be cut. Meanwhile, governor, the officers of the national guard and the big manufacturers of this state were hurrying to Madison to abuse and vilify those who sought to bring national guard appropriations to a point within reason. It may be noted here, too, that the governor of the state of Wisconsin did nothing to help bring the appropriation of the national guard from $600,000 to $250,000.

THERE is a powerful lesson in the figures of expenditures on the national guard as showing how militarism wastes the people's money. Wisconsin today is maintaining a national guard within a few hundred as large on $212,000 a year

Eugene Debs in Tribute to Mrs. La Follette

Socialist Leader Says Wife of Senator Stood As Heroic Figure During the War; Says She Has Superb Moral Courage and Deep Love of Humanity.

BY EUGENE V. DEBS

The public career of Robert M. La Follette, the independent candidate for the presidency, placed in nomination by the progressive forces which have broken away from the two old Wall Street parties, and endorsed by the Socialist party, has been a pretty stormy one and frequently marked by clashes with his own party leaders.

A shrewd politician, he has also been a constructive statesman within the sphere of his activity, and although he has held many offices of public trust and spent practically his entire life in the public service, pursuing always the course he believed to be right with that spirit of courage and self-reliance for which he is so well known, arousing often the bitterest antagonism and provoking the fiercest criticism within his own party as well as from without, yet no breath of scandal has ever touched his name, nor has his personal integrity or his political rectitude ever been questioned.

During the World War Robert M. La Follette, as a United States senator, was subjected to a veritable ordeal of fire from which he emerged absolutely clean and unscathed. In some respects his position was more trying than that of any other public man in the United States. He was the central figure in the orgy of blind hate and venomous hysteria that swept the country like a whirlwind. He was pointed out in the senate as a traitor to be loathed and reviled and driven from public life. Measures were taken to expel him from the senate, branded with treason; he was burnt in effigy and his name, with the anathema of Wall Street and the execration of every spineless mercenary and howling dervish upon it, became a hissing and byword throughout the land.

But through it all "Bob" La Follette kept his head erect and his soul serene, and today he towers a triumphant Titan above all his puny and discredited detractors.

Every heroic figure in history has had its moral sustaining stimulus and its source of strength and inspiration. Robert M. La Follette was never for a moment alone in the dark days of his trial and persecution. At his side, as was maintained when nearly $600,000 was being expended. Where was that additional $500,000 going?

Why should Wisconsin, the professed leader in the cause of peace, be the seventh state today in the size of its national guard? What is the necessity of maintaining a military establishment of 5,400 men in the state? Why should we have a soldiery in Wisconsin seventy per cent larger than in 1915?

Evidently, some more pruning should be done at the 1925 session of the legislature.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE
For J. C. Hansen

Progressive Says Assemblyman Has Built Up Forward Looking Record

[To the Editor]—"Jim" Hansen is a candidate for re-election to the assembly from Dane county.

No one has a finer record in the Wisconsin legislature than Assemblyman J. C. Hansen. For four terms he has served the people faithfully. He has always been fair, honest, courageous.

We understand that one of his opponents is making the argument that Jim has served long enough and ought to be retired. We can not conceive of a more foolish contention.

If a man has served conscientiously and well, he ought to be elected to serve again. We need men whose ability and integrity have been tested. We need men of experience in legislative matters.

If Jim Hansen had fallen down on the job, it would be time to talk about retiring him. But he has made good—and a man who is known to have served his constituents honorably and efficiently should stand higher in their regard than a new candidate who is at best an experiment.

A seasoned soldier is more valuable to an army than a raw recruit. A trained employee is worth more to an industry than a greenhorn. So a public servant with a background of experience and demonstrated merit means more to a state than the mere possibilities of an untried candidate, who may make a good representative of the people—or may not.

There can be no question about the calibre of Assemblyman J. C. Hansen. Eight years of splendid work in the Wisconsin legislature have proven him a man of whom the people can be proud.

Wouldn't it be a shame to retire a man like this for the sake of a fellow who might be all right but who, on the other hand, might be all wrong?

Let us squelch this absurd talk about J. C. Hansen having served long enough and get together to re-elect him by an overwhelming majority.—From a Progressive.

REV. STEARNS' AUTHORITY

[To the Editor]—Does not The Capital Times unjustly criticize Rev. Stearns for his stand in regard to war?

Rev. Stearns turns to the Bible for his guidance in all moral matters, and there he does not lack supporting Biblical injunctions, for we read: "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbor." (Exodus XXXII, 27). This order was given by the Bible God to Moses. And again: "Spare them not, but slay both men and women, infant and suckling." Sam. I, XV, 3. Given by God to Samuel: "Slay utterly old and young, both maidens and little children." (Ex. IX, 6). This order given by God to Ezekiel. And this:

faithful, devoted, unflinching, believing in him with all her great soul, stood his loyal and heroic wife. "She matched his superb courage with her own, and together they stood, fearless and unconquerable, before the insane mob that threatened them with violence for refusing to howl with the pack under the lash of Wall Street, and preserving inviolate the integrity of their own souls."

Through his entire public career Robert M. La Follette has been sustained, strengthened and inspired to deeds of daring by his high-hearted and noble-natured wife.

A rare woman, indeed, is Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, and provisionally destined to become the mate of a heroic and commanding figure in history. For this gifted woman has extraordinary vision and understanding, superb moral courage, a deep love of humanity and a profound sense of obligation to her fellow-beings and to the cause of the common people.

Who that was in Washington when the amnesty campaign was in progress and every effort was being put forth in the face of the bitterest and most powerful opposition, to secure the release of the political prisoners, can ever forget the active and persistent part taken in behalf of these prisoners by Mrs. La Follette. Mrs. Champ Clark and a few other brave and splendid women? I am keenly aware of what they did for me personally, and with what unceasing persistence and tireless energy and devotion they pleaded my cause, often exposing themselves to the rudest criticism and the vilest resentment by the shoddy "patriots" who swarmed about the capital, and I can never forget them and their noble services in the dark days of that arduous and thankless campaign.

Through our present national secretary, Comrade Bertha Hale White, who led the amnesty campaign and rendered such signal service to the political prisoners, and through other sources I learned of that part taken in behalf of the political prisoners in general and myself in particular by these consecrated and dauntless women, especially Mrs. Robert M. La Follette and Mrs. Champ Clark, and ever since have I held them, and always shall, in profound and grateful reverence.

"Cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood." (Jer. XLVIII, 10).

Who dares question Rev. Stearns' authority? —I. Gibson.

REPLIES TO EMERY

[To the Editor]—In The Capital Times of July 18, Dairy and Food Commissioner Emery seemingly (?) allowed himself to get all excited because Mr. Hirst had been reported as making the following charge at Spooner:

"The present administration, however, has in every department reverted to the spoils system."

Mr. Emery states in substance that in so far as that statement applies to the Dairy and Food Department, it was false, and goes on to say: "My reputation for honesty and loyalty to law is as dear to me as is Mr. Hirst's to him," and concludes:

"If correctly reported, Mr. Hirst in making such a false and slanderous charge proves himself reckless of truth and unworthy of public confidence."

Why did Mr. Emery get so excited over a newspaper report and then hide behind that little word, "if?" No one will be misled by his sudden outburst against Mr. Hirst. Mr. Emery is an appointee of Gov. Blaine's. He is holding down a state job at a salary of $4,000 a year plus necessary administration expenses.

Talk about "honesty and loyalty to law." Gov. Blaine has made the positive statement that out of every $100 taxes collected, $40 was spent for highways. That general, unqualified statement can have no other purpose than to deceive the public, and as such it is as false as can be. If Mr. Emery does not know that, he can easily find out by looking the matter up.

Again, Gov. Blaine has brazenly stated that a certain state fish law would not be enforced. If Mr. Emery does not know the facts in regard to these matters he can very easily learn them, and if he really and honestly desires "loyalty to law" he will. Should he do this, there will be no "if" about the information he will get, as there was in his broadside against Mr. Hirst.

I challenge Mr. Emery to go into the matter regarding Gov. Blaine's statements herein mentioned and give to the public a statement of his findings regarding the Governor's worthiness of "public confidence."

I hope Mr. Emery's $4,000 a year job will not keep him from doing this.—Observer.

WEALTH

The old saying, "Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations," is about ready for the ash heap. Tendency increases to put big estates "in trust" so heirs can't squander them.

Take the estate left by the late J. Pierpont Morgan. He created trust funds of about 10 million dollars. An accounting in court shows that these funds have yielded almost five millions income in seven and a half years. And the principal remains intact.

The basic purpose of the inheritance tax is to break up huge fortunes. This purpose will be frustrated until "trust funds" are taken into account. A trust fund is a scientific method of perpetuating wealth.

LAZINESS

A motor operated by waves and tides is far enough developed by the Bulgarian engineer, Vodenicharov, that his government is financing his further work. It's too complicated to explain or read about in warm weather.

But it's a forerunner of future devices that will generate millions of horsepower to free man from the slavery of toil. Going to waste in falling water is an enormous amount of power, and in sunlight an enormous amount of fuel.

Our greatest natural resources are falling water, winds, sunlight and electricity. Later we'll master them. A small start has been made.

The frigate bird and albatross can both sleep on the wing.

JUST THREE

HALL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

Just a wee little cake that was made with much care. 'Twas a mother who baked it that way. The top is all frosting, with three candles there, 'cause it's someone's third birthday today.

And, what is the story the three candles tell? Just why are they lighted, in truth? The little one wonders, while Mom knows it well. They burn for the love of a youth.

One candle for sweetness and purity, rare. It burns with undiminished flame. Another for innocence brightly will flare as a part of the mother-love game.

The third little candle's message that's new; that comes with life's third little page. It flickers of mischief and cuteness, too, the traits that are born with that age.

Yes, that is the story that mother can see. But, to youth, too much thinking 'twould take. And, therefore, it seems, to a youngster of three, the bright burning candles mean—CAKE!

Opinions
In Other Cities

THE naval government of the Virgin Islands is tempered with a civilian judicial system, and the legislative bodies set up by the Danes are still allowed to function, but their powers are slight and they are dominated by the governor. Indeed, Governor Kittelle dissolved the legislative body of St. Thomas in the summer of 1922 because it refused to approve a bill giving him power to discharge judges. Furthermore, the naval regime is not willing to tolerate a free press, and has recently embarked upon a policy intended to stifle effective criticism of its acts. Two natives have been sentenced to jail for contempt of court based upon editorial utterances, while two alien editors have been deported.

Embarrassing Words

Speaker Gillett's Praise of Davis is Found; Lauded When Named Ambassador

Since the nomination of John W. Davis, Republicans have been examining his record in Congress to see if there were features susceptible of attack.

One of these searchers found a laudation of Mr. Davis by Speaker Gillett at the naming of Mr. Davis as Ambassador to Great Britain on Sept. 18, 1918.

Mr. Gillett, then the Republican floor leader, rose in the House and, stating that he had just read in the newspapers of Mr. Davis' nomination, said:

"He was formerly a member of this House, and those of us who had the pleasure of serving with him will recall him as a most capable, courteous and popular member."

"I must admit that I have not esteemed highly many of the appointments made by this administration, and when this vacancy in England came about there occurred to my mind several great Republicans who, I thought, would fill it admirably, and I indulged a faint hope that one of them might be appointed as the first visible corroboration of the statement that 'politics is adjourned.' However, if that was not to be, I wish to say that I can think of no appointment that would have given more satisfaction to both sides of the House than this appointment of Mr. Davis."

"We all admire him and trust him as a man of sound judgment, of broad culture and learning, of high character and of most charming personality, and I am sure that while he is at the Court of St. James that very lofty standard which has been fixed there by a long line of great Americans will not be lowered and that the exacting demands of this momentous crisis will be adequately met."

A Thought

The house of the wicked shall be overthrown; but the tabernacle of the upright shall flourish.—Prov. 14:11.

Peace and wickedness are far asunder.—Stillingfleet.

Here's a horse that has carried a boy 22,000 miles since 1911, to and from school. That wouldn't be a bad mileage for a car. No gasoline. No tires. No parts to be replaced.

The horse, of course, has to eat. He has to be garaged and curried. But, all in all, he's the most perfect transportation device to date. And the safest.
